Fund Manager's Comments

The fund was up 1.96% in April vs our indicative benchmark which finished up 0.37%. During the month of April performance contribution for the fund came from the long and the short side of the book. We partially closed our theme of "short cigarettes" by covering Philipp Morris after the stock dropped 20% and reached our price target. During the last 6 months our significant short in Consumer Staples and bond proxies continues to generate Alpha.

On the long side we increased our position in China Mobile as it quietly announced a share buyback program which could dwarf highly reported buybacks at Apple or Microsoft.

China Mobile is actually seeking authorization for a significant buyback which might be voted in the general assembly in May, as stated in the AGM notice here. The sell side investment research firms are currently not talking much about it and the market is not pricing its success. Nevertheless, we used our shareholder rights to vote in favor of the share buyback and hope that the main shareholder, the Chinese Government, will do the same and that the directors will go forward with it. There are not many cheap megacap stocks and China Mobile's significant lucrative customer base and extraordinary balance sheet ought to command a higher valuation. Patient investors willing to tolerate a conservative, sometimes meddlesome controlling shareholder could be rewarded.
